For those who want to be harder - some inspiration

Sometimes we need an ideal to live up to. A guiding principle. Something that stiffens our spine and galvanises us into action.

A reason to be. A reason to break out of a rut. A reason to say "Fuck you world, I'm a man."

And then prove it by doing.

Doing what you know you should. What you know you must. Doing what you can weasel your way out of, but also know you need to do anyway.

Other days an ideal won't do. Too abstract. On these days we need a hero to look up to.

Not some stupid fictional "super hero". A no bullshit, will fuck you up, hero.

Today we shall read about such a man. A man who killed. A man who had will.

A man who was hard.
